STEWARDSHIP THOUGHTS FOR YOU...

- * Character is not made in crisis, it is only exhibited!
- * Many a man thinks he has an open mind, when it is merely vacant!
- * Laughter is the brush that sweeps away the cobwebs of the heart!

Martin Luther on the CHRISTIAN. (In a sermon on June 24, 1525, Luther preached on the need to do good works as a forgiven sinner, but also that our good works are not necessary at all in order to be forgiven.)

Christians Should Lead a Good Life, but Not Rely on It. When a person preaches about a chaste, continent life, the world promptly wants to pounce on this subject and built a ladder to heaven out of it. But God will not have this. A shameful life does not avail, and a good life does not avail either. What, then, are we going to do? Those who look only at a respectable, well-appearing life would fare far better if they were prostitutes and fornicators and lay in the mud. And yet God does not want us to lead a shameful, evil life; for He does not tolerate it, and you are damned because of it. But if you lead a good life, you want to cling to it; and this, too, He will not suffer. Therefore you must see to it that you stay on the middle course, wavering neither to the left nor to the right, leading a quiet, fine, sober life before the world and not thinking highly of it, considering it no better than sleeping or waking.
